Freedoms Gained Juried Art Show

The Ashtabula Arts Center is seeking submissions of visual art and writing highlighting the rights achieved by African Americans throughout our country’s history, promoting and nurturing unity, pride, and an elevated consciousness of those who have worked and fought to have those rights recognized and enshrined in law. This art show will be part of a larger community-wide celebration of Juneteenth. Below is a list of prompts for inspiration in creating art: rights African Americans have achieved that are essential to a truly democratic society.

Inspiration Prompts:
The right to birth and name one’s own children
The right to create
The right to dress
The right to grow food
The right to marry and have a family
The right to own and do business
The right to preserve one’s history and heritage
The right to read and write
The right to serve in the military
The right to travel
The right to vote, legislate, and govern
The right to worship
